Drug addiction is a chronic condition that can affect many aspects of our life, including your physical and mental health. It includes using legal substances, such Cocaine, Heroin, Inhalants, Marijuana, taking a medicine prescribed for someone else or taking larger doses. etc. It can hurt people around you, including friends, families, kids and unborn babies. People are different in their re-action to drugs. Some addict quickly while others don't addict at all. Addiction is like some diseases, much as heart disease. Both disrupt the normal, healthy functioning of an organ in the body, both have serious harmful effects, and both are, in any cases, preventable and treatable. If left untreated, they can last forever and may lead to death.

Addiction is a very complex condition. When you have these drugs, your body releases a chemical called dopamine, which makes you feel pleasure. This can create an unhealthy drive to seek more pleasure from the substance or the drug. Over time, the substances change your brain chemistry, and you become addicted. Among the causes are mental health problems such as depression and anxiety, work, school problems and hanging around peers who addict.

There is good news that drug use and addiction are preventable. Teachers, parents, and health care providers have crucial roles in educating young people and preventing drug use and addiction.
